Joke

Question: What does a skeleton say before eating?
Answer: BONE-apetit!

Sugar Skull Dough

This fun activity will get your kiddos mixing, sculpting, and decorating...great for fine motor skills, imagination, textural awareness, and colorful, sparkly fun!

Supplies Needed:
- shave cream
- baking soda
- glitter or other tactile items

Join us in our video segment for instructions!

Skeleton Arm X-Ray

Simple craft teaching multi-media art and skeletal make-up. Once you mastered the arm x-ray...try a foot, a leg, or even some ribs!

Supplies Needed:
- black paper
- white chalk
- q-tips
- glue

Join us in our video segment for instructions!

Skeleton Dance

"Them bones, them bone, them crazy bones"...this fun dance will get your kiddos up and moving while also teaching them how the skeleton and body works! Fun for all ages...adults, join in! We could all use a little crazy fun in our lives!

Visit SKELETON DANCE on the Super Simple website for song and dance!
Do you celebrate The Day of the Dead? Do you have friends or family that celebrates? What were some of your ancestor’s favorite foods? What is something you have learned about this holiday?

Research and Additional Activity Links

The Spruce – Celebrate el Dia de los Muertos with Kids
Kid World Citizen – Day of The Dead Decorations
National Geographic Kids – Dead of The Dead

Brain Busters and Quiz Questions

Which of the following is NOT an element of a traditional Dia de los Muertos altar:
1. Marigold flower
2. Candles
3. Bread Of the Dead
4. Butterflies

Who were the first Central Americans to celebrate this holiday?
1. Aztecs
2. Mayans
3. Spanish

How many purple candles are placed on the altar?
1. Seven
2. Twelve
3. Three
4. Nine